1 200 Euros
Fanzine singulier et ambitieux, consacré aux musiques punk, hardcore et industrielle et à toutes les musiques extrêmes, au cinéma expérimental et aux graphzines. Ses choix esthétiques et musicaux audacieux et de plus en plus extrêmes, avec un goût prononcé pour le "clinique - névrotique - hôpital - destruction - torture - érucation", au graphisme glacé et tendu font de chaque numéro une exploration sans concessions des circonvolutions d'une certaine création froide, morbide et malsaine. Illustrations de Krabs, Placid, Muzo, Desvois, Philippe Billé, Pakito Bolino, Dominique Leblanc, Henriette Valium, Frankyboots, Fred Levi-Hadida, Margot Duchnock, Jodi Vigneau, Vinz, Susan Catherine, Marcel Ruijters, MHF, Caramel, Kamagurka, Krogold, Pierre la Police, Caroline Wedier, et nombreuses illustrations photographiques. Textes de Annette Berr, Alexios Tjovas, Jean-René Lassalle, Sergio M. Gesteira, etc.

Unbound, as issued, 27,2 x 21 cm., about 56-124 pages/issue, printed on newsprint b/w, stapled in the spine. Endemic browning, some ragged edges and minor spine damage, a few numbers with closed tears, chipped corners. Altogether an excellent clean set with only minor damage to two numbers as detailed at the bottom of the footnote.
8 000 Euros
 Published [originally] by Jeff Bale, Jeff Berlin, Mark Berlin, Roseann Berlin, Jello Biafra, Bob Black, Booth, Eric Bradner, Mickey Creep, Peter Dimaria, Jim Donovan, Ray Farrell, Fletch, Henry Hample, Dave Rave [photographs] etc., from the actual MRR website we quote: History of MRR-Maximumrocknroll is a widely distributed monthly fanzine dedicated to supporting the underground punk rock scene. MRR's 20-year plus history and large, obsessed all-volunteer staff has made its punk rock coverage the most consistently up-to-date and reliable around. Several major media conglomerates control most music produced today. In contrast, MRR reinforces the values of the punk underground by remaining independent and not-for-profit. Maximumrocknroll started in 1977 as a punk rock radio show - one of the first and best of all time. "Tim [Yo] and the Gang" played the latest punk and hardcore sounds from across the world, the U.S., and from their home in the bristling SF Bay Area punk scene. "The gang" included personalities like Jeff Bale, Ruth Schwartz, and Jello Biafra. Punk antiheroes regularly visited as guest DJs, and the roster of touring bands interviewed on the show reads like the track list on a classic old comp. The show was notable for the immediacy of the music, a dedication to international coverage [rare at the time], and for explicitly interjecting progressive politics into the dialogue of punk. The show became hugely successful in the underground, and eventually was broadcast from stations across the U.S. and abroad. Maximumrocknroll, in its zine form, first appeared in 1982 as the newsprint booklet in Not So Quiet On the Western Front, a comp LP released on then-Dead Kennedys' label Alternative Tentacles. The comp included 47 Nevada and Northern California bands, many of whom went on to ruin thousands of impressionable kids for productive civic life by releasing some of the best punk records ever.... The Maximumrocknroll columns section has served as the punk scene's gossipy party line for decades.... By remaining stable on the one hand, flipping the bird with the other, MRR's controversial personality has affected-or infected-the history of punk rock for all time. Added: Collectors Issue N° 8. Noted Damages: N° 2 has a tear in first 2 pages without loss of text or image, N°10 has half of an inside page missing and a corner torn of another page.

2 800 Euros
La 1ère série [1980-87] connaîtra 30 numéros et 5 Hors-série. La nouvelle série [1990/92] connaîtra 11 numéros. Créée par Aline Richard et Patrice Herr Sang. Fanzine ou se côtoient la scène américaine la plus radicale, les courants post-punk, le punk-rock français, et, en général, tout ce que la musique contient de plus anti-commercial ou de démarche authentique. Le sommaire du numéro 1 d'Avril 80 donne le ton : Ramones, Dils, Crime, Screamers. Une large part est donnée à la scène française et des dossiers évoquent l'Italie, la Pologne ou le Mexique. New Wave voulait "aider à la création de structures alternatives pour faire vivre cette scène, propager les idées politiques liées à cette musique et aider à la multiplication des initiatives alternatives non commerciales." Photographies de Hames Hamilton, Howard Rosenberg, S. Paolillo, Marc Boulet, Philippe Dumail, J.P. Guinet, Joachim Peters, etc.

65. NANAVESH. THROBBING GRISTLE. MUSIC FROM THE DEATH FACTORY
Premier Issue. London, Dave Farmer, 1980. Staple-bound card wraps, 30x18,5cm, 12 pp. including covers. Light rubbing and spine creases to the wraps, interior is clean and bright.
400 Euros
Farmer, in the words of Genesis P-Orridge, was "a friend of Throbbing gristle who had worked for them at times and later published this zine." The 'zine which, began as a homage to Throbbing Gristle, lasted five issues and included other industrial groups before folding. Issue five [23 Drifts to Guestling, 1983] was issued on cassette. Despite the cut-and-paste and hand-written layout, the cover is surprisingly professional with a glossy red and black cover. Contents include a "basic A-Z of T.G." with some history of the band, news clippings, and a couple of photos unique to this 'zine.

77. RAYMOND PETTIBON
CAPTIVE CHAINS
 Lawndale, CA : SST Pubs, 1978. First Edition. 4to. 26.6 x 18.4 cm.
 Original stapled glossy pictorial wraps. One of an unnumbered edition of approximately 5000, "of which only about 100 found their way into commercial distribution" [Ohrt]. [64]pp. Offset printed.
 Some mild toning, touches of edge-wear, else near fine.
800 Euros
 The first book from the artist most associated with the American -and especially Southern California- punk rock scene. Pettibon's indelible black-and-white images graced LPs and fliers for the likes of the Circle Jerks, Dead Kennedy's, Descendents, Germs, Hüsker Dü, Meat Puppets, Minutemen, Ramones, Sonic Youth, Subhumans, Throbbing Gristle, and [most famously] Black Flag - whose name the artist coined. Pettibon's brother Greg Ginn was guitarist for the band and founder of SST Records, under whose auspices most of Pettibon's early books were published and distributed. They unfortunately didn't sell well and - according to the artist - he destroyed most of the remaining copies, leaving only a hundred or so copies of each issue extant. Pettibon [who's also worked under the names Raymond Pettibone, St. Pettibone, Chuck Higby, Raymond Ginn, and Ray Dylan] remains one of the most provocative and vital artists working today, and one whose influence has grown far past his cult beginnings. .

4 000 Euros

Edited by John Holmstrom. The rare complete set, together with an issue of High Times, considered to be Punk N° Zero. Though created during 1975, Punk N° 1 was not issued until January 1976 which is the reason for the complete run's starting date. This was the debut issue of the legendary punk zine, infamous for the truculent interview between Lou Reed and John Holmstrom. Though N° 9 was laid out, it was never printed due to a dispute with the printer. N° 2 has blue ink stain in the margin, a defect originated at the printers and repeated throughout the edition. N° 15 entitled: Mutant Monster. As for the High Times issue... the publisher of High Times, Tom Forcade, was very interested in the early punk movement and a did a lot of funding and cross-promotion in 1977 and 1978. In one 1977 issue, he included a bonus section created by John Holmstrom and sometimes referred to as Punk N° 0.

3 000 Euros
Complete run of this first San Francisco-based tabloid zine devoted to the nascent Punk Rock Scene. Edited by V.Vale. Issues of 16-28 pages. All fine, all FIRSTprintings including the very rare original edition 1978 of N° 10 [the Burroughs issue which was reprinted ten years later]. All the important UK and US bands of the day represented [Sex Pistols, The Ramones, Pere Ubu, Crime, Dead Kennedys, Patti Smith, Iggy Pop, Screamers, Clash, Throbbing Gristle, Buzzcocks, Talking Heads, Devo, Weirdos, and Suicide. Search and Destroy also served as a bridge between the punk scene and the literary/visual artists who both influenced and were influenced by punk : Ginsberg, Burroughs, Ballard, Acker, John Waters, David Lynch, Bruce Conner, Russ Meyer, and Nico Ordway. Though the magazine ceased publication with issue 11 it quickly changed to Re/Search, a magazine which ran for three issues in an identical format and with nearly identical concerns. Thereafter it became a glossy themed annual. Founded by Vale Hamanaka who worked at Lawrence Ferlinghetti's City Lights Bookstore and originally funded by Ferlinghetti and Allen Ginsberg. Named for the Stoogie's proto-punk anthem, Search and Destroy remains one of the most important, vibrant, and influential documents to emerge from punk.
